

Interactivity: Q&A

What is one area where your UHC system excels when it comes to trust, competency or authenticity?

[12:16 PM] Saira Khowaja (Guest)

I think this gives people hope that the finally there is atleast a thought in the direction to make healthcare accessible and equitable

[12:17 PM] Hirut Johnson (Guest)

For many years UHC reform seemed impossible in the US. Right now, there is authentic bottom up desire to see system change.

[12:18 PM] Scheerer, David GIZ (Guest)

Germany: collaborative federalism where people cooperate across party lines and solve issues at the most local level possible

[12:18 PM] Hasnat (Guest)

In our country, especially in province Punjab context, it is a desire that everyone will get secured against health expenditure through Health Insurance. Its in high demand and hope but its a start...

[12:19 PM] Marielle (Guest)

For Viet Nam, from what I can see, there is very high trust from the population in the Government's ability, competencies and will and strong desire to continue to control the Covid-19 epidemic to protect the population

[12:19 PM] Thin Myat (Guest)

Myanmar: I think people trust civilian government who can make this UHC agenda happen comparing to previous military regime.

[12:20 PM] Muhammad Arshad (Guest)

our beneficiaries trust that our Sehat Sahulat Social Health Protection Program is fully reliable when it comes to providing cashless healthcare services whenever and wherever needed. It is so much thrust able that now our government officers are requesting to join the program:)

[12:20 PM] SU SU LIN (Guest)

I am not clear about the question! Should we answer any trust of people?

[12:20 PM] Sadaf (Guest)

All the stakeholders should be involved and incentivised the concerned institution.

[12:20 PM] Muhammad Azam khan (Guest)

In our province people have witnessed getting treated free of cost through social health protection schemes they have started trusting the system

[12:21 PM] Hsu Hsu (Myanmar) (Guest)

For Myanmar, Coordination and collaboration between the different stakeholders is the important one to make people trust as the diversity is value and also the major problem in our country.

[12:22 PM] Afzal, Muhammad Uzair GIZ PK (Guest)

Pakistan: Even poor people through Social Health Protection Initiatives can get high quality services through private hospitals empanelled under the program.

[12:22 PM] Witter, Sophie (Guest)

In the UK. there is a huge popular trust in health workers to treat you fairly, equally and with medical competence. Health workers have been seen as heroes of this crisis

[12:23 PM] Nay Nyi Nyi Lwin (Guest)

Covid 19 turns the situations in Myanmar and people share the positive view on the health care providers. The policy makers focus their eyes on health sector again and it is a good time for moving the UHC agenda forward.

[12:23 PM] MEYER, Claude (Guest)

In France, UHC is part of the country's social contract. No political party (even the most extremes) can question the UHC principles.

[12:23 PM] Scheerer, David GIZ (Guest)

Agree with Hsu Hsu that we need to lead by example to create trust. If we do not show a collaborative spirit across agencies and sectors, how can we ask for collaboration from the people?

[12:23 PM] nwe zin win (Guest)

For Myanmar, people feel UHC could possible after COVID 19 response by the government

[12:24 PM] Hirut Johnson (Guest)

Yes Hsu Hsu

[12:24 PM] SU SU LIN (Guest)

Thanks Danny! People have various uncertainties and challenges which will further burden on health sector. But people want free of charge and quality care, most of them did not know to take responsibility. COVID has side benefit to teach people to take responsibility from their side.

Describe one aspect of your country's leadership culture which is an asset for UHC reforms?

[12:29 PM] Muhammad Arshad (Guest)
inclusive Leadership

[12:30 PM] Manish (Guest)
Servant leadership and spirit to serve by government health leaders inspite of tough working conditions and low income

[12:30 PM] Moh Moh Lwin (Guest)
Visionary leadership

[12:30 PM] Afzal, Muhammad Uzair GIZ PK (Guest)
Responsive leadership

[12:31 PM] Nay Nyi Nyi Lwin (Guest)
Sharing the same vision and work together in different roles to achieve this vision.

[12:31 PM] Hirut Johnson (Guest)
Visionary leadership can really help, sometimes we need help!

[12:31 PM] Hsu Hsu (Myanmar) (Guest)
Accountability

[12:31 PM] Muhammad Azam khan (Guest)
Continuity of policies

[12:31 PM] BAJRACHARYA, Bikesh GIZ NP (Guest) open-minded and transparent

[12:31 PM] Saira Khowaja (Guest)
When there is a collective belief in a solution everyone jumps in to work towards the success of the cause

[12:32 PM] Scheerer, David GIZ (Guest)
Germany: for historic reasons there is a strong distaste for leading by force. Angela Merkel exemplifies a preferred leadership style. She often leads calmly in the background, like a conductor.

[12:32 PM] Marielle (Guest)
From my organization: capacity to mobilize people and set of competences across the institution - strong culture of dialogue and orientation to get consensus for decision making

[12:33 PM] Kinz ul Eman (Guest) collaborative, innovative and proactive especially in the current unprecedented times

[12:33 PM] SU SU LIN (Guest)
Leader with the people, also has capacity and kind heart!

[12:34 PM] Hirut Johnson (Guest)

Grappling with the challenge of being an evidenced based leader

[12:34 PM] Sadaf (Guest)

Carismatic leadership which can gain trust of the people especially in current situation

[12:34 PM] Witter, Sophie (Guest)

If we use the orchestra analogy, then WHO has a very challenging set of players to conduct....

[12:34 PM] Thin Myat (Guest)

Leadership with empathy and collective approach.

[12:34 PM] Scheerer, David GIZ (Guest)

I think Pakistan and Germany have a lot in common. Pakistan is also very decentralized and there is nobody who can simply impose their will on the whole country. You need to convince actors one by one and in the process adjust your own position.

[12:34 PM] Manish (Guest)

compassion and courage to be vulnerable and open

[12:35 PM] Marielle (Guest)

Viet Nam: Strong vision and clear directions given from top level

[12:35 PM] Kayin SPHD (Guest)

Honesty

[12:37 PM] Muhammad Arshad (Guest)

Teaming up is the key
